REGINA, November 9.

Dr. Brett announced yesterday that he had been called upon by the lieutenant governor to form a new advisory board, and had done so by calling in Messrs. Betts of Prince Albert, Richardson of Wolseley, and Jolly of North Regina. The lieutenant governor had agreed to their controlling matters of Territorial finance and legislation, but reserved the right to deal with the funds voted by the federal government for expenses of government in the Northwest. He would however consult the advisory board on these matters. The federal funds for roads and bridges would be divided equally amongst the several districts by the lieutenant governor. Dr. Brett announced for himself and colleagues that he accepted the situation as thus defined as being according to statute, but reserved the right to work in favor of a change to give full responsibility to the assembly in all Territorial matters. In carrying out the system laid down, he hoped that himself and colleagues would not be held responsible for its imperfections, but would receive the credit of the house in making the best of it. Haultain replied, merely congratulating the new advisory council on their energetic office. The position accorded the late advisory board by the lieutenant governor was one of control of the funds derived from federal as well as Territorial sources, and I was discontent of his apparent retrograde from that position, that the late board resigned, while still retaining the confidence of a majority of the house.

Haultain moved that the lieutenant governor be requested not to constitute police officers justices of the peace. He charged that decisions were rendered by inferior officers in the force on instructions from superior officers. Clunkskill, seconded, and Richardson supported Haultain's charges. The motion carried. Ross moved for a commission to investigate the charges made by Haultain.

The monthly meeting of the Edmonton curling club, was held in the club room of the rink on Friday night. M. McCauley, president. The managing committee reported having rented the rink for $100 and one set of stones for $30 per season from the Investment Company; also having appointed Roy D. G. McQueen, Chaplain and P. Oliver and H. S. Young as club representatives. Their report was adopted. The secretary reported having 60 names on the membership roll. After some miscellaneous business had been transacted the meeting adjourned.

The contractors completed the curling rink building this week. It is 153 feet long by 38 feet wide and has within two sheets of ice with a platform 34 feet wide and 18 inches high between them, and one at each end 5 feet wide and the same height. The height of the walls proper is 10 feet and the distance from the floor to the peak 24 feet. The roof is of boards and the sides boards and battens. The building is lighted by 22 large windows, 11 on each side. At the front end is a lean to 12x18, with two rooms, one for the curlers and one for the skaters. Through the rooms the passage leads into the main building. The water will be supplied from a well with a pump in it dug at one corner of the building. It is said to be the last building of the kind in the Territories.

LOCAL.

A MAN by the name of Murray from the Old Country was a passenger on Monday's stage.

H. S. YOUNG of the H. B. Company, was taken to the landing on Friday by W. J. Houston.

AL. PATTERSON left on Wednesday for Calgary with A. Carter. He will be gone two or three weeks.

MR. INSULIS of Fort Saskatchewan, left on Wednesday for Winnipeg, where he will in the future reside.

A PARTY consisting of W. S. Robertson, P. Davy, J. Lohy and S. S. Taylor left on a hunting expedition to Egg Lake on Thursday.

SCOTT SIMPSON, factor of the Hudson Bay Company at Fort McMurray, arrived with the party from the Athabasca on Wednesday. He left for the south on Thursday's stage.

THUNDERBOLT is going on in the Sturgeon settlement. The sample of grain in first class being even better than that of last year, but the yield much below the average, but better than was generally expected.

WEATHER fine and warm. No ice has been seen running on the river yet, but in sharp places it has formed enough to skate on. A party, the first of the season, spent some hours skating on Thanksgiving Day.

MOST of the farmers around here have finished their fall plowing, although some are still at it. This is a later date than usual in which to carry on plowing operations, but owing to the warm fine fall, no difficulty has yet been experienced from frost.

J. BOWEN, J. EDMONTON, F. MEARON and ALAN, have been employed by the Hudson's Bay Company during the fall, improving the navigation of the Athabasca River at Grand Rapids, by blasting and removing rocks from the channel, returned to town on Wednesday. The odiousness of the water compelled them to quit work.

ON Monday a large number of fruit trees and vines, arrived from Calgary, per James Inkster's teams. They were taken charge of by R. McKernan and distributed to those purchasing. They were apparently in good condition. They are from the Maple Grove nurseries in Waterloo, N.Y. The total value of the shipment is about $150.

MR. PADMORE, formerly trader at Wolf Creek, was in town during the week. He sold out his business at Wolf Creek to McKernan & Elliott, who will continue it. He shipped his goods by Beaver Lake to Victoria for which place he left on Wednesday with the intention of trading among the Indians of that district, the coming winter. B. Wilson goes with him as guide and assistant.

A CORRESPONDENT from Ontario writes: "I was much surprised to see in your paper that you had no frost to hurt anything until September 7th. My father and brother who were out at Calgary on one of the farmers' excursions, found vegetation much injured both by frost and drought. They would like to have seen your district if they could have found some mode of conveyance not quite so expensive as the stage, and had more time at their disposal. I hope to see for myself what your country is like before long."

THE issue of the Dominion Illustrated for October 16th is a superb number. The first page illustration is entitled a Grecian bride. There are four splendid photos of Hon. M. G. Bulkeley governor of Connecticut, Col. Cone of Connecticut, the late Hon. Sidney Smith and the late Judge Oliver. There are three views on Lake Memphremagog and one of Carletonville. There is a view of a summer evening concert in the Gore, Hamilton, one of the dry dock, Equilibrium, B. C., and one of the New York Life Insurance Company's Building. Place D'Armes. Taken altogether it is the best number of this periodical yet published.

B. LARSON the delegate from Foster Co., Dakota, who arrived here some few days ago, has been enjoying his time in looking over the country. He visited Closer Bar, Stony Plain, Fort Saskatchewan, Sturgeon River, and Big Lake settlements, and says that he never saw so many places so near to what is the district not even in the far famed Red River valley. Mr. Larson represents about twelve families of English speaking Swedes, who, if his report is favorable, will move out next year. He himself intends coming anyway. They have their stock, machinery, etc. and will probably come overland via Regina. Mr. Larson left for his home on Thursday, going as far as Calgary with P. Heinrick.

THE ADVISORY BOARD.

The trouble in Regina over the resignation of the advisory board, may possibly mark a crisis in the struggle for responsible government in the Territories. The particulars in connection with the resignation, have not been received, but Haultain in announcing it said "on the whole the business had been carried on in accordance with the position taken up last year. They had resigned because they were unable to take the responsibility for several executive acts. Having been elected by the assembly they felt their responsibility to it. There had been a tendency on the part of the members to criticize them, rather than the system, and to draw an unfair comparison between them and the ideal system which they wished for."

Last year when the board was appointed the governor gave the assembly to understand that it in many things, would have the powers that in the provinces belonged to the ministry, and in this way be a sort of substitute for responsible government. These expectations would no doubt have been realized if we had the right sort of governor, one who sincerely desired to give the people's representatives as large a share in the management of their own affairs as the law, under which he was working, would permit. He could, and it was believed, would, delegate to his advisory board some of the powers vested in himself, and in this way give the work of local administration to local men, representing the people. But it appears that our governor was not that kind of a man. Representing as he does, not the people, or the desire of the people of the Territories, but the Dominion government's policy, he did not have to lessen his own importance by divesting himself in this way of any of his authority over the Northwest. Instead of increasing the power of the board as much as possible, it has not been nearly as much as they were led to expect, and besides they were expected to assume the responsibility for acts they had nothing to do with. The governor did not deem it necessary to take their advice in many matters of considerable importance, but would listen to them and then instead of following the advice given would in some cases go contrary to it, and it would appear that on some matters their advice was not even asked for. The governor did not appear at all in the assembly but left the board to face the members. As independent men there was only one course open to them and that was to refuse to longer occupy such an anomalous position, and refuse to take the responsibility for acts that they had nothing to do with. In this determination they were sustained by the assembly.

The Regina Leader sees no reason for their action, as there was no vote of want of confidence passed, and it was unreasonable for them to expect more powers than the act gave them, and that their action, together with the actions of those members who worried them with their questions, will not raise the practical character of the assembly in the eyes of the public, or of the Dominion parliament. The Leader overlooks the fact that their resignation is the strongest possible protest against the existing order of things. It is a protest against the hybrid government we now have, and it will have a tendency to wake up public opinion on this question. So long as the advisory board continued in existence, the people were lulled with the fond delusion that they had something to say, through their representatives, in the administration of public affairs. But now the board by its action has declared that they had not, but that it is the one man power of former years, with this difference, that under the old order this one man had to face the people's representatives in council assembled, where as under the newer order he could securely sit in his office in government house, and let his board face the music for him. If the situation of things that exists at Regina does nothing else but wake up the people of the Northwest to a conception of the irresponsible nature of our Territorial executive, and arouse them to at once agitate for a change, it will be fruitful in good results. It is an insult to the intelligence and common sense of our best men, for the federal government any longer to keep the Northwest in swaddling clothes. As long as the present state of affairs continues it is virtually saying, "you are not old enough, you don't know enough, to govern yourselves and so we will send up our Dewdney and Royals to do it for you, and if they have a mind to listen to your advice all right, and if not all right." The history of the past would lead us to conclude that no change will take place until one is forced, and the sooner the people of this country awake to this knowledge, and combine to demand what they have failed to secure by asking, the sooner they will have their rights granted. It is certainly humiliating to have to go, hat in hand to Ottawa, for every dollar needed and for permission to do as we like with it after it is secured, with the yearly danger of being punished by having part of it withheld, if we do not act with becoming humility. If the resignation of the advisory board will effect the desired result it would not be too much to pay, or if that fails if the resignation of the whole assembly would secure it, or at least awaken, not only the people of the Territories, but the Dominion government, to the urgent necessity there is for the granting of full responsible government to the Northwest Territories, it would be cheaply secured, and in this case the end would justify the means.

The following letter from a resident of Edmonton appeared recently in "Public Opinion" a journal published in London, England.

"As I have intimated, immigration has been slow, but few once settled have desired to leave, and those who for some reason have gone away were careful not to dispose of any real property they might have, and in nearly all cases have speedily returned. I know of no country where a living can be more comfortably and surely made, and by industrious and intelligent work anyone on a farm can realize more than a competence.

Edmonton itself contains a population of 600, not in any way engaged in farming. There are successful merchants, skilled mechanics in all trades, bankers, parsons, doctors, lawyers, all of whom contribute to the wealth of the country. The farmers surrounding it. The country is magnificent in its fertility; it is well wooded and watered of parklike appearance, and the prairie of Manitoba and the southern part of the territories are no more to be compared with the fertile lands of the United States than the South of England. Although the land which was open for free grant homesteading within, say, a radius of seven miles of Edmonton has been taken up, occupied, and cultivated, beyond that radius the land still open, equally well adapted for agriculture. And Edmonton is not the only considerable settlement. All kinds of grain are successfully raised here. There never has been a failure of crops, and the soil is not so subject to unusual drought, it is not heavy. Wheat and barley are good crops, and all kinds of vegetables grow in profusion. I have known of fields yielding 100 bushels of oats to the acre, and others 80 bushels of wheat. This, I confess, is above the average; but it is not so far from the truth. The soil is at least double that quoted by your correspondent "C. A. H." for the Brandon district. The average of potatoes is 300 bushels per acre. The market is not entirely local, as might be inferred from the fact that, as being not railway accessible, the great northern country, the posts of the Hudson's Bay Company, and other fur traders and the Indians, are supplied through and from Edmonton. There is a division of the North West Mounted Police of about eighty men, who have headquarters at Edmonton, and who, I understand, about the country are provided for, and the Indian department to be supplied with large stores to feed the ineffective and harmless, but always hungry, aborigines. All this is done at the expense of the Dominion government. Prices realised are good—wheat, $1 to $1.15 per bushel; oats, 50 to 60 cents; and I have known prices much higher. It is a splendid country for dairy farming; and for stock raising far exceeds in value the south. Native horses and cattle need not be stabled or stalled at any time during the winter. Straw or hay feed is all that is required.

The winters are cold, but the extreme is reached gradually, and there is no hardship from a sudden change of temperature. The "cold snap," I felt the cold in England on, I think, January 18, 1881, when the thermometer registered 1 degree below zero, most of the day. It was not so cold here as have here at 50 degrees below zero. The intense cold lasts only two or three days, and in this way the winter is made tolerable from blizzards most completely. When the thermometer registers low their is no wind. As an Englishman, I can truthfully say that the cold here is much more tolerable than trying; and to agriculturists, at least, it will be interesting to know that they are four weeks shorter than in England. The present season for building and fencing, and if need be for fring, but it is not much used for the latter purpose, owing to the present season for building and fencing. It is mined and delivered in the town at $3.50 per ton. All along the Saskatchewan and Sturgeon Rivers the deposits

ASSEMBLY NOTES.

The two most interesting events in the assembly proceedings, was the resignation of the advisory board, and the debate on Mr. Cayley's memorial to the federal government to have the French language discontinued as an official language in the Territories. It has come out that the real reason of the resignation of the board resigning was that frequently the board would meet and take action in certain matters, and then when such action did not fully accord with the views of Mr. Royal, he ignored them entirely, and did as he pleased.

The discussion on the dual language question occupied the afternoon of the 29th, nearly all the members taking part. The house was moved into committee of the whole on the following memorial brought in from a special committee. To his excellency the governor general and the honorable the senate and commons of Canada. Whereas by section 110 of N. W. T. act it is enacted that "Either the French or the English language may be used by any person in the debates of the legislative assembly of the Territories, and in the proceedings before the courts; and both these languages shall be used in the records and journals of the assembly, and all ordinances made under this act shall be printed in both these languages; and whereas this assembly is of the opinion that the sentiment of the people of the Northwest Territories is in favor of the continuance of the section recited, on the grounds that the needs of the Territories do not demand the official recognition of a dual language in the Northwest, or the expenditure necessitated by the same; and whereas this assembly is also of the opinion that sound public policy demands the discontinuance of two official languages in the Northwest; Therefore your petitioners humbly pray—That the section recited in the act be repealed at the next session of parliament." The chairman stated that the question had been held over for several days to allow Judge Rouleau to be present. After Cayley, Thorburn and Richardson had argued in favor of the memorial, and Mitchell against it, Justice Rouleau made a long speech ably urging his side of the question. He wanted the question to stand until the next election, and let it be decided at the polls. It was not a matter of national pride, but of convenience. He spoke French long before he spoke English and yet was as good a Canadian as any of them, and yet the Queen as loyally as any man. Language did not make nationality. The Americans spoke English and yet were not Englishmen. If they wanted to perpetuate the French language they had only to coerce the French people. If the province of Quebec were asked to decide between England or France they would not be even a minority for France. There was something behind all this. They wanted to get a slap at a certain class. They had the right acquired by centuries and also by the Treaty of Paris. Sutherland, Hamilton, Clark and the rest agreed to the Judges argument and claimed the people were strongly in favor of the petition. Mr. Oliver made a vigorous speech showing however that he was for abolition. The petition passed in committee. A motion was made in the house to give it the six months' trial, which was defeated by the following vote:

For the host.
Against.
Haultain, Sutherland, Jelly, Plaxton, Hessman, Thorburn, Richardson, Neff, Tweed, Cayley, Linham, Betts, Davidson, Secord, Oliver, Ross and Turill.—17.

Messrs. Clinkskill and Brett were absent. The petition passed as any of them would have signed it. Richardson is on the warpath against four cent beer. A petition was presented asking for the abolition of manufacturing beer in the Territories if the principle of allowing it to be sold, was allowed.
